(List additional photographs on separate sheet.)

Any photographic print or other form of reproduction of Historical Archives material is supplied for non-commercial study, scholarly or academic research purposes only. Obtaining copies of Historical Archives material does not imply any right to publish, recopy, or exhibit them. For publication, recopying, or exhibition, the intended user must provide the Historical Commission with information regarding the specific material desired for use, as well as information regarding the nature and purposes of the proposed publication, recopying, or exhibition of that material, and must first obtain the Historical Commission's permission for use of the materials as described before such use may lawfully occur. The Historical Commission reserves the right to refuse permission, and to revoke any permission at any time once granted.

Permission to use Historical Archives material does not give the user exclusive rights to the material, nor the right to manipulate or crop any material without explicit permission. The following credit line must accompany the finished work: Courtesy of the St. Clair Shores Historical Commission, St. Clair Shores, MI. When a detail of the image is used, the word "detail" must appear in the credit line.

Any Historical Archives material to be published, recopied, or exhibited is subject to payment of a reproduction fee, over and above the cost of file preparation and prints, with the exception of non-commercial study, scholarly, or academic works.

The Historical Commission retains any copyright ownership it owns in the Historical Archives material and all rights to exploit its copyrights under the law. All rights not expressly granted herein are reserved to the Historical Commission.
